

Lettly

Lettly is a company specialising in Instagram marketing. We created a tool that enables brands to fully use only one clickable link in Instagram and to redirect traffic from posts to the online shop or a website and increase conversions from this channel. Apart from the Instagram tool, we also run social media projects with Instagram and Snapchat influencers for companies such as T-mobile or RWE.

We are a start-up based in Warsaw (Google Campus) and cooperate with more than 100 online shops in Europe and USA.

We are looking for:

New Business Specialist, who will be responsible for seeking new partnerships with creative/interactive agencies worldwide, other partners and new brands interested in using our tool.

Marketing Specialist, who will be cooperating with our marketing team on creating content, planning marketing activities, social media projects and also help coordinate influencers campaigns.

We offer:

- cooperation with a friendly team, in a start-up environment
- office in Warsaw Google Campus
- possibility to work in different fields and implementing your own ideas
- active participation in the development of the company

If you like what we do, and we like what you do for us, there's a chance, that we hire you in Warsaw or cooperate remotely after the internship.

Please send us a CV and few words about you and why you decide to apply for the position to work@lettly.com (write PolSoc Internship in the title).
